Plaintiff Stephanie Leiner (“Plaintiff” or “Leiner”), individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, by and through her attorneys, alleges on personal knowledge as to all facts related to herself and upon information and belief (based upon the investigation of counsel) as to all other matters, as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Defendant, Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc. (“J&J” or “Defendant”), manufactures, markets, and sells Johnson & Johnson Bedtime Products, including JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® Bath (“Bedtime Bath”) and JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® Lotion (“Bedtime Lotion”), JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® MOISTURE Wash (“Moisture Wash”), JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® Washcloths (“Washcloths”), and JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® Bubble Bath & Wash (“Bubble Bath”) (collectively, “Bedtime Products” or “Products”), which purport to help a baby sleep better. For instance, on the front of the Bedtime Bath and Bedtime Lotion bottles, there is a prominent logo that proclaims: “CLINICALLY PROVEN, HELP BABY SLEEP BETTER.”¹ Defendant also markets and advertises, on the back of these bottles, that it has created a “clinically proven” nighttime or bedtime routine of a warm bath, gentle massage (with the Products), and quiet activities that will help babies sleep better (e.g., reading, cuddling, and singing lullabies) (See, e.g., Exhibits 1, 2).

2. Since the introduction of the Bedtime Products beginning in 2000, Defendant's nationwide advertising campaign has been extensive, and Defendant has spent a significant amount of money to convey its deceptive messages to consumers throughout the United States. Defendant used an array of media to convey its deceptive claims about the Bedtime Products, including in television, magazines, the Internet, and the Product labels. Through this massive marketing campaign, Defendant has worked to convey one message: J&J's Bedtime Products are clinically proven to help babies sleep better. Each customer who purchased the Bedtime Products was exposed to that advertising message, in particular, the misleading labels, and purchased the Products as a proximate result of that message.

3. Defendant's claims are deceptive and misleading, and have been designed to induce consumers to buy Bedtime Products. Defendant knew or should have known, at the time it began selling the Products, that there are no studies showing that Bedtime Products are clinically proven to provide any results, and Defendant has no basis to make the claims about its Products.

4. As a result of J&J's deceptive conduct, the company charges a premium of at least $1.00 for Bedtime Products above its other baby washes and lotions, a premium that Plaintiff and other consumers paid (and continue to pay) with the specific understanding, based upon Defendant's false and misleading labeling, advertising, and pervasive representations, that using the Bedtime Products, either alone or in connection with the "clinically proven" nighttime routine, will help babies sleep better. As a result of Defendant's false and misleading representations, Plaintiff and consumers bought the Bedtime Products, paid more for the Bedtime Products than they otherwise would have paid absent the wrongful conduct, and have been damaged as a result of the wrongful conduct.

5. This class action seeks to provide redress to consumers in Illinois and nationwide who have been harmed by the false and misleading marketing practices Defendant has engaged in with respect to the Bedtime Products. Defendant's conduct has included the systematic and continuing practice of disseminating false and misleading information throughout the United States via pervasive multi-media advertising and the Product packaging. These actions were and are intended to induce unsuspecting consumers, including Plaintiff and the members of the Class, into purchasing the more expensive Bedtime Products, which Products are not clinically proven to have the benefits that are represented. Those very supposed benefits serve as the basis for consumers' decisions to purchase the Bedtime Products, instead of the less expensive J&J baby washes and lotions that have long been sold on the market and do not purport to provide such "clinically proven" benefits.

6. Plaintiff brings this action to obtain redress for those who purchased the Bedtime Products. Plaintiff alleges violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act, 815 ILCS 505 § 1, et seq. ("Illinois Consumer Fraud Act" or "ICFA")² and Unjust Enrichment.

7. Through this action, Plaintiff seeks injunctive relief, actual damages, restitution and/or disgorgement of profits, statutory damages, attorneys' fees, costs, and all other relief available to the Class as a result of Defendant's unlawful conduct.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

8. This Court has original jurisdiction of this action under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005. The amount in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5,000,000, exclusive of interest and other costs, and there is minimal diversity because certain members of the Class and Defendant are citizens of different states, as required by 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2).

9. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because Defendant is authorized to do business, and currently does business, in Illinois.

10. Venue is appropriate in the Northern District of Illinois pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because Defendant engages in substantial business throughout this District.

THE PARTIES

² Plaintiff also alleges claims under the consumer protection acts and laws of the remaining forty-nine states, the District of Columbia, and all U.S. territories, including Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

11. Plaintiff is, and at all times relevant to this action has been, a resident and citizen of Chillicothe, Illinois.

12. J&J is a New Jersey corporation and, at all times relevant to this action, has maintained its principal place of business in Skillman, New Jersey. J&J, thus, is a citizen of New Jersey. J&J sold its Bedtime Products through retail stores, the Internet, and through television and other advertisements, all of which led consumers to purchase the Bedtime Products throughout the United States. J&J knew, or should have known, that the representations made regarding the Bedtime Products were false and misleading at the time that it began distributing them in the United States market.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Facts Common to Plaintiff and the Class

13. This class action is brought against J&J for the benefit and protection of all purchasers of the Bedtime Products in Illinois and in the United States.

14. J&J launched its Bedtime Products beginning in 2000. As a general matter, many babies and toddlers have difficulty falling asleep and sleeping through the night. Indeed, J&J's website indicates that "20-30 percent of babies experience regular sleep problems, including difficulty falling asleep and sleeping through the night." Most parents, 76 percent, report a desire to change some aspect of their baby's sleep." <http://www.johnsonsbaby.com/difference/baby-science#sleep>.

15. Indeed, a majority of families report that sleep is the number one challenge they face. See www.babycenter.com > Expert Advice, Americas Sleep Crisis, July 2012, <http://www.babycenter.com/sleepstudy> (last visited July 1, 2015).

16. When Defendant introduced its Products, Defendant knew that its target audience would be eager to accept claims that the Products could help babies sleep better. Defendant used this opportunity to lure customers into paying a premium price for the Products by making prominent representations in the marketing materials for the Products, including the front labels for the Products, that simply using the Products would help babies fall asleep more easily and sleep better.

17. J&J has had baby washes and lotions on the market for years. J&J is not in the business of selling routines – it is in the business of selling its Products. In order to sell more products and attempt to capitalize on this perceived market to improve baby’s sleep, J&J launched these Products and claimed it had expanded its existing product line to introduce innovative products to help a baby sleep better.

18. The Bedtime Products are known to customers only by the representations made about the Products by Defendant. If, as is the case here, J&J sold other baby washes and lotions for infants and young children, then customers would have no reason to pay a premium to buy the new products, i.e., the Bedtime Products, unless and until they are exposed to Defendant’s labeling and other pervasive messages about the purported properties and benefits of the Products. The label itself, as well as in the marketing material disseminated by Defendant, both make the false and misleading representations about the Products’ benefits and properties. In other words, given the existence of similar bath and skin lotion products, long sold by J&J, for washing and moisturizing a baby’s skin, consumers would purchase the Bedtime Products if, and only if, they were exposed to Defendant’s pervasive labeling and advertising campaign that these new Products did something that its others did not do – here, it is that the Bedtime Products were (and are) clinically proven to help baby sleep better.

19. For example, the Products themselves are touted by Defendant. In its Infant Sleep Guide, which cites to its own “baby care experts” at J&J, Defendant stated that:

Our new products, enriched with NATURALCALM™ essences, a unique blend of gentle ingredients and soothing aromas, can help your baby sleep better when used as part of a regular nightly routine. JOHNSON’S® is the first and only brand that’s clinically proven to help babies fall asleep easier and sleep through the night better. To learn more about our products, visit JohnsonsBaby.com/sleep.

(emphasis added).³

20. Prior to January 2013, Defendant’s websites provided, inter alia, Baby Sleep

³A true and correct copy of the Infant Sleep Guide is attached hereto as Exhibit 3.

Guides, New Parent's Guide to Better Sleep, and various “studies” to support its misleading claims. While the language on some of these materials has changed slightly between January 2013 and early 2016, the wording on the Product labels has remained constant: that the Bedtime Products are clinically proven to help babies sleep better.

21. The labeling and marketing communicates a persistent and material message and makes a common and pervasive representation that the Products are clinically proven to help babies sleep better. These core representations alleged to be false and misleading, that the Products themselves are clinically proven to help babies sleep better, are contained on the Product labels themselves for every purchaser to read.

22. On the front of the bottle of the Products, there is a prominent logo that proclaims: “CLINICALLY PROVEN, HELP BABY SLEEP BETTER.” (Exhibits 1, 2).⁴

23. J&J claims that its Bedtime Products are clinically proven to help babies and toddlers fall sleep better, and are now labeled as able to help babies who have “trouble sleeping” achieve a “better night’s sleep.” (Exhibits 1-2).

24. Therefore, Defendant expressly represented that the Products were clinically proven to help baby sleep better.

25. As Defendant knows, however, contrary to the clear labeling and advertising, the Bedtime Products themselves are not clinically proven.

26. J&J further states, on the back label of the Bedtime Product bottles, that it has also created a “clinically proven” nighttime or bedtime routine of a warm bath (with the Products), gentle massage (with the Products), and quiet activities (e.g., reading, cuddling, and singing lullabies):

Treat your baby to a bath with JOHNSON’S® BEDTIME BATH®, a gentle massage with JOHNSON’S® BEDTIME LOTION®, a few minutes of quiet time, and your baby will drift off to a better night’s sleep.

⁴ Although there have been minor variations of the label, since 2010 and up until early 2016, these same exact words have remained constant.

(See Exhibits 1, 2) (emphasis added). Thus, in addition to the false representation that the Products themselves are clinically proven, Defendant also has carefully created the misleading and deceptive impression that consumers can use the clinically proven Product and the clinically proven “nighttime routine” to help baby sleep better.

27. Throughout the relevant time period, Defendant has marketed the Products using uniformly deceptive advertising and packaging. Likewise, the labeling and marketing for the Bedtime Products contain substantially the same message. A typical label promises that:

- a. The Products are “CLINICALLY PROVEN, HELP BABY SLEEP BETTER” (Exhibits 1, 2);
- b. The Products help your baby fall asleep easier and sleep through the night better (Exhibits 1, 2); and
- c. The nighttime routine is clinically proven to help babies and toddlers sleep better (Exhibits 1, 2).

28. At no time, however, either in its labels, advertising, or so-called clinical studies, does J&J attempt to sell the routine, or to describe the use of the routine or its studies, without also including the Bedtime Products in the description of the routine and in the description of the studies. Nor would one expect it to, since Defendant does not sell routines – it sells Bedtime Products. See <http://www.johnsonsbaby.com/difference/baby-science#sleep>.

29. Not surprisingly, and consistent with its goal of selling products (not routines), Defendant has recently added a new product to its line - the JOHNSON’S® BABY BEDTIME® Washcloths (“Washcloths”). The front of the package proclaims that the Washcloths are “clinically proven help baby sleep better.”⁵ The label also states that the customer should “Try our other JOHNSON’S® Baby BEDTIME® products to help baby sleep better.” (Exhibit 4) (emphasis added).

30. Defendant has also repeated its unfair and/or deceptive representations about its Products on its websites: www.johnsonsbaby.com, www.jnj.com, and www.johnsonspromotional.com. During the relevant time period the content of the websites contained materially the same message about the Products that Defendant has put on the labels of the Bedtime Products and disseminated since its launch.

31. Defendant's website advertising also states that the Products are formulated with NATURALCALM™, a "special blend of gentle and calming aromas."⁶ See also <https://www.johnsonsbaby.com/babywash/johnsons-bedtime-lotion>. (NATURALCALM™ is a special blend of gentle and calming aromas).

32. At some point since January 2013, Defendant changed this language from the prior representation, that it was a "unique blend of patent pending essences that has been tested and proven to have relaxing properties." In fact, since the time of the introduction of the Bedtime Products, J&J has claimed that NATURALCALM™ is a "patent-pending blend of gentle and soothing aromas" proven to promote calming and a relaxed state.⁷

33. However, Defendant is well aware that the patent for NATURALCALM™ was never tested with babies or children.

34. Defendant also states that the Bedtime Lotion is "clinically shown to last all night long." (Exhibit 5).

35. Since the launch of the Products and until early 2016, J&J has consistently and uniformly stated on its labeling and in its other advertisements that the Products are clinically proven to help babies sleep better. J&J intended the statement to appear scientific and give the claims a special significance, when, in reality, Defendant knows the Products themselves are not clinically proven.

36. J&J did not test the "routine" with products other than the Bedtime Products, such as J&J's long-sold ordinary bath products, another company's products, or with no products at all.

37. In the United Kingdom, a challenge to the advertising of the very claims at issue

⁶ A true and correct copy of the website page from 2014 is attached hereto as Exhibit 5.

⁷ A true and correct copy of the product label for Bedtime Lotion is attached hereto as Exhibit 6, and a true and correct copy of the product label for the Bedtime Bath is attached hereto as Exhibit 7. Both were used in or around January, 2013, but were changed sometime between that date and the present.

here found that Defendant's advertising was "likely to mislead" as Defendant failed to show that it was the use of the Products in the suggested routine that was proven to help babies sleep better and because the advertising did not make clear that the routine had only been tested on babies over seven months old. The Advertising Standards Authority Council "told them to ensure that any similar advertising did not suggest that Johnson's products, as part of the bedtime routine, had been proven to help babies sleep better and to make clear that the routine had been proven to work only for babies over seven months old." See ASA Adjudication on Johnson & Johnson Ltd, Apr. 30, 2008, formerly available at http://www.asa.org.uk/ASA-action/Adjudications/2008/4/Johnson-and-Johnson-Ltd/TF_ADJ_44345.aspx.⁸

38. All of these representations made by J&J on the Product labels are deceptive, false, and misleading. Moreover, as a result of these representations, Defendant was able to sell, to Plaintiff and other consumers, the Bedtime Products at a premium over its plain lotion and wash products (e.g. JOHNSON'S® BABY Lotion, JOHNSON'S® BABY Wash, or other comparable name brand products), which cost at least twenty-five percent (25%) less than Bedtime Products. In other words, Plaintiff purchased the Products at a premium price over other baby bath and lotion products.

39. Had Plaintiff and other members of the proposed Class been aware of the truth, they would not have purchased the more expensive Bedtime Products or would have paid substantially less for them.

Plaintiff's Experiences

40. Plaintiff's claims are based on the Products' labels. On or about 2014, Plaintiff viewed the claims on the labels of the bottles of the Bedtime Products at a Target store in Peoria, Illinois. In particular, Plaintiff recalls reading Defendant's claims on the labels that the Products were better than the other J&J products because these Products (and only these Products) were "clinically proven" to help babies sleep better.

⁸ A true and correct copy of the decision is attached hereto as Exhibit 8.

41. Plaintiff also noticed that the labels of other baby wash and lotion products, including J&J's long-sold regular products and other brand name products, did not contain claims that the products were "clinically proven" to help babies sleep better. As a result, the labels on the Products convinced Plaintiff to purchase the Bedtime Products, instead of any other similar baby wash and lotion products, to help her baby sleep better.

42. Defendant's claims that the Products would help the baby sleep better also induced Plaintiff, in addition to her purchase of the Bedtime Bath Products, to also purchase J&J's long-sold regular products, for use in the daytime.

43. In reliance on the label's claims that the Bedtime Products were clinically proven to help her baby sleep better, Plaintiff purchased two bottles of Bedtime Lotion and Bedtime Wash at the Target located at 5001 N Big Hollow Road, Peoria, IL 61615.

44. Plaintiff used the Bedtime Lotion in conjunction with the Bedtime Wash in accordance with J&J's 3-step routine.

45. The labeling of the Product bottles, and the representations therein, were made by Defendant. Reasonably relying on the claims made on the labeling of the bottles, Plaintiff purchased the Products. Plaintiff reasonably expected that the Products would work as advertised and sold and, thus, used the Bedtime Products as directed.

46. After using the Bedtime Products as part of the 3-step nightly routine for a period of time with her child, Plaintiff discontinued use, as she determined that the use of the Bedtime Products (included in the "routine") did not help her baby sleep better.

47. Plaintiff suffered actual damages and loss, in the amount of the total price of the Bedtime Products purchased and/or the price premium of the Bedtime Bath Products, as a result of the improper actions described herein.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

48. Plaintiff brings this action on behalf of herself and all other similarly situated consumers pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and seeks certification of the following Class:

All persons who purchased the Bedtime Products within the United States, the District of Columbia, and all U.S. territories, including Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands, not for resale or assignment from July 1, 2010 to the date of entry of the Preliminary Approval Order, that were labeled, marketed and/or advertised as “clinically proven [to] help baby sleep better” or to be used as part of a “bedtime” or “nighttime” routine.

49. Specifically excluded from this Class are: (a) purchasers of the revised Bedtime Product labels from early 2016 that state on the front label “routine helps baby fall asleep faster and stay asleep longer”; (b) Defendant, its officers, directors, agents, trustees, corporations, trusts, representatives, employees, principals, servants, partners, joint ventures, or entities related to or affiliated with Defendant and/or its officers and or directors, or any of them; (c) any person who has suffered personal injury or is alleged to have suffered personal injury as a result of using the Bedtime Products; and (d) the Judges to whom this case is assigned.

50. Numerosity/Impracticability of Joinder. The members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. The proposed Class includes thousands of members. The precise number of Class members can be ascertained by reviewing documents in Defendant’s possession, custody, and control, or otherwise obtained through reasonable means.

51. Typicality. The representative Plaintiff’s claims are typical of the claims of the members of the Class she seeks to represent. Plaintiff and all members of the Class purchased the Bedtime Products at a premium price due to the same wrongful course of conduct. Plaintiff’s claims arise from the same practices and course of conduct that give rise to the claims of the Class members and are based on the same legal theories.

52. Commonality and Predominance. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all members of the Class and predominate over any questions solely affecting individual Class members. These common legal and factual questions include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a. Whether Defendant engaged in a pattern of fraudulent, deceptive, and misleading conduct targeting the public through the marketing, advertising, promotion, labeling, and/or sale of the Bedtime Products;
- b. Whether Defendant made material misrepresentations of fact or omitted to state material facts to Plaintiff and the Class regarding the marketing, promotion, advertising, and sale of the Bedtime Products, which material misrepresentations or omissions operated as fraud and deceit upon Plaintiff and the Class;
- c. Whether Defendant's false and misleading statements of fact and concealment of material facts regarding the Bedtime Products were intended to deceive the public;
- d. Whether, as a result of Defendant's misconduct, Plaintiff and the Class are entitled to equitable relief and other relief, and, if so, the nature of such relief;
- e. Whether Plaintiff and the members of the Class have sustained loss and damages as a result of Defendant's acts and omissions, and the proper measure thereof; and
- f. Whether such a failure violates statutory and common law prohibitions against such conduct, as detailed more fully below.

53. Adequacy. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the members of the Class. Plaintiff has retained counsel highly experienced in complex consumer class action litigation and intends to prosecute this action vigorously. Plaintiff is a member of the Class and does not have interests antagonistic to, or in conflict with, the other members of the Class.

54. Superiority. A class action is superior to all other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy since, among other things, individual litigation and/or joinder of all members of the Class is economically unfeasible and procedurally impracticable.

While the aggregate damages sustained by the Class are likely in the millions of dollars, the individual damages incurred by individual Class members as a result of Defendant's wrongful conduct alleged herein are too small to warrant the expense of individual litigation. The likelihood of individual Class members prosecuting their own separate claims is remote and, even if every Class member could afford individual litigation, the court system would be unduly burdened by individual litigation of such cases. Individual members of the Class do not have a significant interest in individually controlling the prosecution of separate actions and individualized litigation would present the potential for varying, inconsistent, or contradictory judgments and would magnify the delay and expense to all of the parties and to the court system because of multiple trials of the same factual and legal issues. Plaintiff does not foresee any difficulty in the management of this litigation that would preclude its maintenance as a class action.

55. Adequate notice can be given to Class members directly using information maintained in Defendant's records, or through notice by publication.

56. The Class may be certified pursuant to Rule 23(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure because Defendant has acted on grounds generally applicable to the putative Class members, thereby making final injunctive relief and corresponding declaratory relief appropriate with respect to the claims raised by the Class.

57. The Class may be certified pursuant to Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure because questions of law and fact common to Class members will predominate over questions affecting individual members, and a class action is superior to all other methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy and causes of action described in this Complaint.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

Violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act, 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. 502/1 et seq.

58. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each and every preceding paragraph as though fully set forth herein.

59. In Illinois, the “Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act” 815 Ill. Comp. Stat. 502/1, et seq. (“the Act”), like the consumer fraud acts of numerous other states across the nation, prohibits deceptive acts and practices in the sale of such products as Defendant’s Bedtime Products.

60. Plaintiff and the Class were injured by Defendant’s deceptive misrepresentations, concealments and omissions and these misrepresentations, concealments and omissions were material and deceived Plaintiff and the Class.

61. Defendant does business in Illinois, sells and distributes the Bedtime Products in Illinois, and engaged in deceptive acts and practices in connection with the sale of their Bedtime Products in Illinois and elsewhere in the United States.

62. The Products purchased by Plaintiff and the Class were “consumer items” as that term is defined under the Act.

63. Defendant misrepresented and deceptively concealed, suppressed and/or omitted the material information known to Defendant as set forth above concerning the Products, which has caused damage and injury to Plaintiff and the Class.

64. Defendant’s deceptive acts occurred in a course of conduct involving trade and commerce in Illinois and throughout the United States.

65. Defendant’s deceptive acts proximately caused actual injury and damage to Plaintiff and the Class.

66. Defendant intended Plaintiff and all Class members to rely on their deceptive acts.

67. The conduct of the Defendant constituted a consumer fraud under the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

Unjust Enrichment

68. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each and every preceding paragraph as though fully set forth herein.

69. A party is unjustly enriched when it retains a benefit to the detriment of another party against the fundamental principles of justice, equity, and good conscience.

70. Here, Defendant reaped millions of dollars in revenue as a result of its scheme to deceive Plaintiff and the Class regarding its false representations of its Bedtime Products' clinically proven efficacy to help babies sleep. That Defendant has amassed such earnings pursuant to their deceptive behavior violates the fundamental principles of justice, equity, and good conscience.

71. Defendant continues to be unjustly enriched by the misleading labeling of its Bedtime Products.

72. Plaintiff and the Class seek to have Defendant disgorged of their unjust enrichment, i.e., profits, reaped pursuant to its conspiracy to defraud.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff, on behalf of herself and the members of the Class defined herein, prays for judgment and relief as follows as appropriate for the above causes of action:

- A. That the Court enter an order certifying this action as a class action;
- B. That the Court enter an Order against Defendant awarding to Plaintiff and the Class compensatory/actual damages and such other monetary relief as the Court deems appropriate;

- C. That the Court enter an Order against Defendant to disgorge all profits unjustly received through their sale of the Bedtime Products to Plaintiff and the Putative Class Members
- D. That the Court enter an order granting declaratory and injunctive relief as permitted by law or equity, including enjoining Defendant from continuing the unlawful practices as set forth herein;
- E. Reasonable attorneys' fees, expert fees and costs; and
- F. Such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

JURY DEMAND

Plaintiff demands a trial by jury on all issues so triable.

The Infant Sleep Guide

Between the ages of three and six months, your infant will be able to sleep for longer stretches at night. Which means you'll get a little more sleep than before. Congratulations! Now your baby is beginning to understand the difference between night and day, which makes it a perfect time to help improve their sleep time routine.

Put your infant to bed drowsy but awake.

The most important aspect of getting your baby to sleep through the night is to have your baby learn to soothe herself to sleep. Put your baby down to sleep when he or she is drowsy but awake. Babies need to be able to fall asleep independently, so that they can do the same when they wake in the middle of the night.*

How much sleep?

Your infant will sleep between 13 to 15 hours each day. It's important to realize though, that every baby is different and some will more sleep, while others need less. Your baby will also need to nap from two to four times a day.*

Create a loving nighttime routine.

To help ensure that your baby is getting the sleep he or she needs, build a consistent, three-step sleep routine that includes:

A warm bath

A soothing massage

& quiet time

These calming events help tell your baby, "It's time to settle down and go to sleep." You may also want to begin to establish a set time for sleep, a set wake time, and set naptimes. To learn more about creating a nighttime routine that will help your baby sleep better, visit JohnsonsBaby.com/sleep.

Habits to avoid.

Make sure your baby's nighttime routine is not too long or too impractical to stick to. Try to avoid rocking or nursing your baby to sleep, because you may end up doing the same when your baby naturally wakes up during the night. Consider this: is this a habit you want to be catering to six months from now, or two years from now? Take turns with your partner with putting your baby to bed to help avoid developing such habits.*

The Infant Sleep Guide

Bathing is a good way to relax & bond with your baby.

You can help your baby relax before bed by including bathing into her nighttime routine. Warm water and a lullaby can help soothe your baby into the land of nod. Be sure to use a gentle cleanser suited for your baby.*

You can also try massage to help relax your baby.

Massage is a great way to relax your baby, It's also a wonderful way to bond with your baby.

To begin, lay a towel down to soften and add warmth to any flat surface. Start with your baby on her back. Be sure to keep your hand on your baby at all times when she's on the flat surface. Moisten your hands with a mild lotion specially made for babies, such as JOHNSON'S® BEDTIME TOUCH™ MASSAGE GEL, and warm the lotion in your hands. Begin massaging her head with gentle circular touches. Start with the forehead, temples, eyebrows, nose, ears, and around the mouth and jaw. Maintain eye contact with your baby, talking or singing to her the whole time.

Work your way down, rubbing across her shoulders and chest, in one fluid motion. Be sure to follow your baby's cues to know whether the touch is soothing. Make gentle, light, circular motions across her tummy. Continue down her arms, hands and fingers, one at a time. And finally, legs to feet, rubbing all ten toes. Turn your baby on her tummy and repeat the same massage.

Enjoy your baby's nighttime routine. When you include a bath and massage, and a moment of quiet time together it becomes a wonderful time to unwind together and to bond.

Ad

A magazine ad, for Johnson's Baby Bedtime bath and lotion, stated "Kiss goodbye to sleepless nights. Putting your baby down for the night can now be the highlight of the day thanks to Johnson's Baby. Our new Bedtime Bath and Bedtime Lotion routine has NaturalCalm, a unique blend of gentle, soothing aromas. In fact, ours is the first and only Clinically Proven routine to help your baby sleep better".

Issue

1. The complainant challenged whether Johnson & Johnson could substantiate the claims that the routine could help babies sleep better.

2. The ASA challenged whether the ad misleadingly implied that Johnson & Johnson's products specifically, as part of the routine, had been proven to help babies sleep better and whether the ad implied the routine had been proven to work for babies of all ages.

CAP Code (Edition 11)

Response

1. Johnson & Johnson Ltd (Johnson's) said their Bedtime bath and lotion routine consisted of three steps. The first step was to bath the baby in a warm bath that contained Johnson's Baby Bedtime Bath. The second step was to massage the baby with Johnson's Baby Bedtime Lotion and the third was quiet time, which involved helping the baby to wind down by singing gently or reading to the baby or feeding him or her. They said the claim "clinically proven to help babies sleep better" was fully substantiated by a clinical study conducted before the product launch. They said a leading paediatric sleep expert, who was internationally recognised for her expertise in paediatric sleep disorders, was the sub-investigator in the study. They said the study's aim was to examine the effects on babies' sleep of a consistent pre-bedtime routine, which included the use of Johnson's Baby Bedtime Bath and Johnson's Baby Bedtime Lotion. They provided details of the study and said it provided support for the claims "fall asleep faster", "sleep longer" and "sleep better" in association with the bedtime routine.

Johnson's said the claim "Kiss goodbye to sleepless nights" was a play on words to reflect both the visual of the relaxed looking mother kissing her baby goodnight and the results of the study, which showed that a significant proportion of babies went to sleep faster, slept for longer and awoke less often during the night after adopting their bedtime routine. They believed consumers were unlikely to interpret the claim literally and therefore would not be misled.

2. Johnson's said it was not their intention to imply that it was their products alone that contributed to the improvement in sleep. They said it was obvious from the ad that they were promoting a routine. They said the study had compared the Johnson's bedtime routine against a control group. The parents in the control group had maintained their infant's existing night-time routine, which could include other bath products. They said that because they knew bath time in particular, and also massage, were very common pre-bedtime activities, they could assume that bath products other than Johnson's were used in the control group. They believed a routine that used other products had not been clinically proven to help babies sleep better.

Johnson's said the study was carried out on babies between seven and 18 months of age, because seven months was the age at which normal sleep patterns were established. It was also a safety measure because that was when most babies could sit unaided in a bath. They said the ad showed an image of a baby who looked older than six months and that was therefore consistent with the study.

Johnson's said they had no plans to use the ad again.

Assessment

1. Not upheld

The ASA noted the study provided by Johnson's demonstrated that babies subjected to a before-bed routine using Johnson's products slept for longer, went to sleep faster and woke less often during the night than the babies in the control group. We noted the study had been conducted under the supervision of an independent expert in the field and had produced clinically relevant results. We concluded that the study demonstrated that the bedtime routine used could help babies sleep better. We also considered that readers were likely to interpret the claim "kiss goodbye to sleepless nights" in the context of the "help babies sleep better" claim and were unlikely to understand it as a guarantee that all babies would sleep at night if they were subjected to the routine.

On this point, we investigated the ad under CAP Code clauses 3.1 (Substantiation) and 50.1 (Health & Beauty Products and therapies) but did not find it in breach.

2. Upheld

We noted the control group in the study provided by Johnson's had consisted of mothers and babies carrying out their normal bedtime routine. Because there had not been a control group that carried out the 'bath, massage and quiet time' routine but without Johnson's products, we considered that the study did not demonstrate that it was specifically the addition of Johnson's Bedtime Bath and Bedtime Lotion to the routine that produced the results. We considered that the claim "Putting your baby down for the night can now be the highlight of the day thanks to Johnson's Baby" and "Our new Bedtime Bath and Bedtime Lotion routine has NaturalCalm, a unique blend of gentle, soothing aromas" suggested that Johnson's products played a key part in helping babies sleep better, rather than the nature of the routine itself, i.e. a baby having a bath, a massage and 'quiet time' before bed.

We also noted the study had only been carried out on babies aged seven months and older. We acknowledged there were safety reasons why babies of that age had been used in the study but we considered that, in the absence of qualification, and because the image of the baby in the ad was not noticeably older than seven months, readers were likely to infer from the ad that the routine had been proven to work for babies of any age.

Because Johnsons had not specifically demonstrated that it was the use of their products in the suggested bedtime routine that was proven to help babies sleep better, and because the ad did not make clear that the routine had only been proven to work for babies over seven months old, we concluded that the ad was likely to mislead.

On this point, the ad breached CAP Code clauses 3.1 (Substantiation), 7.1 (Truthfulness) and 50.1 (Health & beauty products and therapies).

Action

We noted Johnson's did not intend to repeat the ad. We told them to ensure that any similar advertising did not suggest that Johnson's products, as part of the bedtime routine, had been proven to help babies sleep better and to make clear that the routine had been proven to work only for babies over seven months. We advised Johnsons to seek guidance from the CAP Copy Advice team on similar advertising in future.
