Case #1-14-CV-274434 Filing #G-76139
By R. Walker, Deputy

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA

KELLY ROMERO and RICHARD H.
JOSEPH on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

LOACKER USA, INC., a Delaware corporation,

Defendant.

Case No. 1-14-CV-274434

Assigned to Department 1
Hon. Peter H. Kirwan

~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER GRANTING MOTION
FOR PRELIMINARY APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT

This is a putative class action by plaintiffs Kelly Romero and Richard H. Joseph ("Plaintiffs") on behalf of themselves and other consumers of packaged Quadratini wafer products or sandwich packaged wafer products sold by defendant Loacker USA, Inc. ("Defendant"). Plaintiffs allege that Defendant misbranded its products as "All Natural" and having "All Natural Ingredients Guaranteed" or statements of similar import, but that the products actually contain artificial, synthetic, chemical and highly processed ingredients, as well as artificial chemical preservatives and flavorings, including cocoa processed with a synthetic alkali, sodium acid pyrophosphate, soy lecithin, sodium hydrogen carbonate, glucose syrup and dextrose.¹

1 The operative Class Action Complaint (“CAC”), filed on December 12, 2014, asserts 2 eleven causes of action for: (1) unlawful business practices in violation of Business and 3 Professions Code section 17200 et seq.; (2) unfair business practices in violation of Business and 4 Professions Code section 17200 et seq.; (3) fraudulent business practices in violation of Business
5 and Professions Code section 17200 et seq.; (4) misleading advertising in violation of Business 6 and Professions Code section 17500 et seq.; (5) untrue advertising in violation of Business and 7 Professions Code section 17500 et seq.; (6) violation of the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, 8 California Civil Code section 1750 et seq.; (7) breach of express warranty; (8) restitution based 9 on quasi-contract/unjust enrichment; (9) common law fraud; (10) negligent misrepresentation; 10 and (11) breach of contract.

11 The putative class is defined as “[a]ll persons in the United States who, at any time from 12 March 6, 2010 to the present, made retail purchases of one or more of the Misbranded Products 13 that were labeled ‘All Natural’ and contained one or more of the following ingredients: cocoa 14 processed with alkali, sodium acid pyrophosphate, soy lecithin, sodium hydrogen carbonate, 15 glucose syrup, dextrose, milk powders, coffee powders, fruit powders, sugar, and coconut oil.”²

16 The case has reached a tentative settlement, and Plaintiff now moves for preliminary 17 approval.

18 Under the parties’ Stipulation of Class Action Settlement (the “Stipulation”),³ Defendant 19 agrees to the creation of a common fund in the amount of $1,200,000.00, and each “Settlement 20 Class Member” is eligible for a $3.29 refund for every product for which they submit a valid and 21 adequate “Proof of Purchase,” which includes receipts, product packaging, or other 22 documentation from a third-party commercial source reasonable establishing the fact and date of 23 purchase during the Settlement Class Period of qualifying products.⁴ Settlement Class Members 24 who do not have valid Proofs of Purchase are eligible for a $3.29 refund for each product they 25 purchased up to a maximum of five (5) products.⁵ Each Settlement Class Member must complete 26 and sign a Claim Form within 60 days of the Notice Date (30 days after preliminary approval) to 1 receive an award.⁶ Claims can be submitted online through the settlement website or via mail.

2 Any remaining funds will be distributed as cy pres to an appropriate charity consistent with 3 applicable law.⁷ Defendant also agrees that labels bearing the representation that the challenged 4 Quadratini products are “All Natural” or “natural” will no longer be used, and Defendant will 5 remove all statements from its websites representing that its Quadratini products are “All Natural” 6 or “natural.”⁸

7 The common fund will also be used to pay for incentive awards of $2,500 for each of the 8 named Plaintiffs, attorney’s fees in the amount of $400,000, and payment of litigation expenses 9 not to exceed $25,000.⁹

10 The proposed class notice will be provided through a combination of print publication, 11 Internet banner ads, a settlement website, and a toll-free number.

12 The proposed settlement administrator is CPT Group (“CPT”).

13 Discussion

14 “The well-recognized factors that the trial court should consider in evaluating the 15 reasonableness of a class action settlement agreement include ‘the strength of plaintiffs’ case, the 16 risk, expense, complexity and likely duration of further litigation, the risk of maintaining class 17 action status through trial, the amount offered in settlement, the extent of discovery completed 18 and the stage of the proceedings, the experience and views of counsel, the presence of a 19 governmental participant, and the reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement.’ 20 [Citations.] This list ‘is not exhaustive and should be tailored to each case.’ [Citation.]” (Kullar 21 v. Foot Locker Retail, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 116, 128.) “[A] presumption of fairness exists 22 where: (1) the settlement is reached through arm’s-length bargaining; (2) investigation and 23 discovery are sufficient to allow counsel and the court to act intelligently; (3) counsel is 24 experienced in similar litigation; and (4) the percentage of objectors is small. [Citation.]” (Dunk 25 v. Ford Motor Co. (1996) 48 Cal.App.4th 1794, 1802.)

27 ⁶ Id. §§ II.A.21, III.D.1.

28 ⁷ Id. § 3.C.4.

⁸ Id. § III.C.1.

⁹ Id. § III.H.1.

1 Here, the proposed settlement is entitled to a presumption of fairness. It was reached 2 through arm's-length bargaining after formal mediation with the Honorable Edward A. Infante
3 (Ret.) of JAMS. According to Plaintiffs' counsel, although the case did not settle during the full-4 day mediation, the parties continued to negotiate with the assistance of Judge Infante before 5 ultimately reaching the agreement in principal.¹⁰ Regarding investigation and discovery, 6 Plaintiffs' counsel states that they began investigating Plaintiffs' claims before filing suit by 7 sending a letter to Defendant on March 6, 2014 and engaging in preliminary discussions and 8 exchanging information and documents.¹¹ After filing suit, the parties engaged in written 9 discovery, and Plaintiffs' counsel reviewed documents produced by Defendant such as data sheets 10 for the challenged ingredients containing information about their production processes and 11 sales.¹² Plaintiffs' counsel also consulted with food scientists, economists, and consumer-12 marketing analysts, conducted preliminary consumer surveys, and interviewed putative class 13 members.¹³ Plaintiffs' counsel demonstrates his firm's experience in consumer protection class 14 actions.¹⁴

15 "Although [t]here is usually an initial presumption of fairness when a proposed class 16 settlement ... was negotiated at arm's length by counsel for the class, ... it is clear that the court 17 should not give rubber-stamp approval. Rather, to protect the interests of absent class members, 18 the court must independently and objectively analyze the evidence and circumstances before it in 19 order to determine whether the settlement is in the best interests of those whose claims will be 20 extinguished. To make this determination, the factual record before the ... court must be 21 sufficiently developed... . The proposed settlement cannot be judged without reference to the 22 strength of plaintiffs' claims. The most important factor is the strength of the case for plaintiffs 23 on the merits, balanced against the amount offered in settlement. The court must stop short of the 24 detailed and thorough investigation that it would undertake if it were actually trying the case, but 25 nonetheless it must eschew any rubber stamp approval in favor of an independent

1 evaluation.” (Kullar, supra, 168 Cal.App.4th at p. 130, internal citations and quotation marks 2 omitted.)

3 Here, Plaintiff’s counsel evaluates the merits of the claims in this case. He submits that 4 although he believes the claims have merit, there were many obstacles to full recovery including 5 having to prove Defendant’s marketing and advertising was likely to deceive reasonable 6 consumers, establishing that the misrepresentations and omissions were material to reasonable 7 consumers, demonstrating class certification requirements such as the predominance of common 8 questions of law and fact (especially as to the class members’ understanding of product labels)
9 and the ascertainability of the class (given that Defendant does not sell directly to consumers), 10 and establishing the class members’ right to more than nominal damages. According to counsel, 11 many food-mislabeling actions have not been certified or have lost at summary judgment post-12 certification, and many are on appeal in the Ninth Circuit. Plaintiffs’ counsel submits that 13 continued litigation would involve further costs and risks such as extensive discovery of 14 voluminous sales data from Defendant and third parties, deposing witnesses overseas (Defendant 15 is an Italian company), subpoenaing documents from Defendant’s ingredient suppliers (some also 16 overseas), designing and conducting sophisticated, rigorous and expensive consumer surveys and 17 damage models, and preparing expert reports from economists, food scientists, and consumer 18 marketing analysts.¹⁵ Balanced against these obstacles and risks of continued litigation, 19 Plaintiff’s counsel submits that the settlement amount is better than the class members only being 20 awarded the premium they paid for the products owing to the misrepresentations, and the amount 21 compares favorably to other food-mislabeling cases. The Court finds that Plaintiffs sufficiently 22 balance the strength of their case against the amount offered in settlement. The proposed 23 settlement provides a fair and reasonable compromise to Plaintiffs’ claims, and also includes 24 meaningful injunctive relief that addresses the core misrepresentations alleged in this action.

25 The Court also has an independent right and responsibility to review the attorney fee 26 provision of the settlement agreement and award only so much as it determines 27 reasonable. (Garabedian v. Los Angeles Cellular Telephone Co. (2004) 118 Cal.App.4th 123, 28

¹⁵ Decl. Orshansky ¶ 13.

1 127-128.) Plaintiffs' counsel seeks an award of $400,000 in fees. This represents one-third of the 2 common fund, which is not an uncommon contingency fee allocation. This award is 3 presumptively reasonable under the "common fund" doctrine, which allows a party recovering a 4 fund for the benefit of others to recover attorney's fees from the fund itself. (See City and County
 5 of San Francisco v. Sweet (1995) 12 Cal.4th 105, 110-111.) In advance of the final approval 6 hearing, Plaintiffs' counsel shall submit evidence to support a lodestar cross-check as a further 7 way of evaluating the reasonableness of the attorney's fee award. (See Lealao v. Beneficial Cal.
 8 Inc. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 19, 46-47.) Plaintiffs' counsel shall also submit documentary 9 evidence supporting their litigation expenses.

10 Regarding class representative awards, "[t]he rationale for making enhancement or 11 incentive awards to named plaintiffs is that they should be compensated for the expense or risk 12 they have incurred in conferring a benefit on other members of the class.' [Citation.] An 13 incentive award is appropriate "if it is necessary to induce an individual to participate in the 14 suit[.]" ... [Citation.]' [Citation.] '[C]riteria courts may consider in determining whether to make 15 an incentive award include: 1) the risk to the class representative in commencing suit, both 16 financial and otherwise; 2) the notoriety and personal difficulties encountered by the class 17 representative; 3) the amount of time and effort spent by the class representative; 4) the duration 18 of the litigation and; 5) the personal benefit (or lack thereof) enjoyed by the class representative 19 as a result of the litigation. [Citations.]' [Citation.] These 'incentive awards' to class 20 representatives must not be disproportionate to the amount of time and energy expended in 21 pursuit of the lawsuit. [Citation.]" (Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2010) 186 Cal.App.4th 22 1380, 1394-1395.) The requested $2,500 award per Plaintiff is facially reasonable, and Plaintiffs' 23 counsel provides a general statement that Plaintiffs have vigorously pursued this action over 24 nearly a year and a half.¹⁶ In advance of the final approval hearing, Plaintiffs must provide more 25 detailed evidence in support of the amount of time and effort spent, but the Court will 26 preliminarily approve of the class representative awards.

28 ¹⁶ Decl. Orshansky ¶ 22.

1 The proposed form of notice to the class is through publication, with one 1/3-page 2 advertisement in People Magazine, at least one 1/8-page advertisement in National Geographic, a 3 settlement website, Internet banner ads that link to the settlement website, and a toll-free number.
 4 It seems that individual notice by direct mailing is impracticable given the size of the nationwide 5 class and the fact that customers did not purchase directly from Defendant. "The notice given 6 should have a reasonable chance of reaching a substantial percentage of the class members who 7 do not while away their spare time by browsing among fictitious name statements and notices of 8 trustees sales." (Cartt v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal.App.3d 960, 974.) Plaintiffs submit that 9 general interest publications like People and National Geographic each have a circulation of 10 approximately 3.5 million.¹⁷ Data from GfK MediaMark Research & Intelligence, LLC ("MRI")
 11 shows that publication in People will likely reach 18.08 percent of Settlement Class Members, 12 publication in National Geographic will likely reach 14.86 percent of Settlement Class Members, 13 and Internet banner ads will likely reach 71-80 percent of Settlement Class Members.¹⁸ The 14 proposed administrator, CPT, will use xAxis MRI analysis to place banner ads ranging in various 15 sizes on various demographic specific targeted audience centered websites.¹⁹ CPT estimates that 16 if notice appears in the aforementioned print and Internet advertisements, the overall reach would 17 likely exceed 89 percent.²⁰ The Court finds that the proposed notice procedure has a reasonable 18 chance of reaching a substantial percentage of the putative Settlement Class.

19 "The content of a class notice is subject to court approval. If class members are to be 20 given the right to request exclusion from the class, the notice must include the following:

21 A brief explanation of the case, including the basic contentions or denials of the 22 parties;

23 A statement that the court will exclude the member from the class if the member 24 so requests by a specified date;

25 A procedure for the member to follow in requesting exclusion from the class;

26 A statement that the judgment, whether favorable or not, will bind all members 27 who do not request exclusion; and 28 A statement that any member who does not request exclusion may, if the member 29 so desires, enter an appearance through counsel."

¹⁸ Decl. Orshansky ¶ 20.

¹⁹ Decl. Orshansky ¶ 20.

²⁰ Decl. Orshansky ¶ 20.

1 (Cal. Rules of Court, rule 3.766(d).) Here, the Long-Form Notice is Exhibit 3 to the Stipulation 2 and it complies with rule 3.766(d). The deadline for submitting claim forms,²¹ objections, and 3 requests for exclusion is 60 days from the “Notice Date,” which is September 28, 2015, assuming 4 preliminary approval on August 28, 2015. This is a reasonable amount of time for putative class 5 members to receive notice and participate in the settlement process.

6 Plaintiffs also move for provisional certification of a settlement class. “The party seeking 7 certification has the burden to establish the existence of both an ascertainable class and a well-
8 defined community of interest among class members. [Citations.] The ‘community of interest’ 9 requirement embodies three factors: (1) predominant common questions of law or fact; (2) class 10 representatives with claims or defenses typical of the class; and (3) class representatives who can 11 adequately represent the class. [Citation.] [¶] The certification question is ‘essentially a 12 procedural one that does not ask whether an action is legally or factually 13 meritorious.’ [Citation.] A trial court ruling on a certification motion determines ‘whether ... the 14 issues which may be jointly tried, when compared with those requiring separate adjudication, are 15 so numerous or substantial that the maintenance of a class action would be advantageous to the 16 judicial process and to the litigants.’ [Citations.]” (Sav-On, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 17 Cal.4th 319, 326.)

18 A class is ascertainable if it identifies a group of unnamed plaintiffs by describing a set of 19 common characteristics sufficient to allow a member of that group to identify himself as having a 20 right to recover based on the description. (Harper v. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. (2008) 167 21 Cal.App.4th 966, 977.) The numerosity requirement requires that it is impracticable to join all of 22 the class members all before the court.” (Miller v. Woods (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 862, 23 873.) “Adequacy of representation depends on whether the plaintiff’s attorney is qualified to 24 conduct the proposed litigation and the plaintiff’s interests are not antagonistic to the interests of 25 the class. [Citations.]” (McGhee v. Bank of America (1976) 60 Cal.App.3d 442, 450-451.) “The 26 test of typicality is whether other members have the same or similar injury, whether the action is 27 based on conduct which is not unique to the named plaintiffs, and whether other class members

28 _____
²¹ The Claim Form is Exhibit 2 to the Stipulation.

1 have been injured by the same course of conduct.” (Seastrom v. Neways, Inc. (2007) 149
2 Cal.App.4th 1496, 1502.) The party moving for class certification must also establish “by a 3 preponderance of the evidence that the class action proceeding is superior to alternate means for a 4 fair and efficient adjudication of the litigation.” (Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court 5 (Briseno) (2001) 24 Cal.4th 906, 914 [class treatment must “provide substantial benefits both to 6 the courts and the litigants”].)

7 Here, the proposed class is ascertainable because the Settlement Class Members can 8 likely self-identify based on the objective characteristics in the class definition (e.g., purchase of 9 Defendant’s products labeled “All Natural” at any time from March 6, 2010 to the present). The 10 proposed class is sufficiently numerous to make joinder impracticable, as it is estimated to be in 11 thousands, if not millions.²² As discussed above, Plaintiffs’ counsel has experience in similar 12 litigation, which supports counsel’s adequacy to represent the class, and there is no reason to 13 suggest that Plaintiffs’ interests are antagonistic to the interests of the putative class, or that her 14 claims are not typical of the proposed class. Plaintiffs submit that common issues of law and fact 15 predominate because the proposed class members’ claims all stem from the same misleading 16 statements which appear on the product labels.²³ Thus, the Court grants provisional certification 17 of the proposed class for settlement purposes.

- 3 • The deadline for commencing publication of the Class Notice in National Geographic, 4 People Magazine, and through Internet banner ads is no later than September 28, 2015;
- 5 • The deadline for submitting Claim Forms, requesting exclusion from the Settlement Class, 6 and objecting to the Stipulation or serving notice of appearance at the final approval 7 hearing is no later than November 30, 2015;
- 8 • The deadline for filing the motion for attorneys' fees, expenses and incentive payments is 9 no later than November 16, 2015;
- 10 • The deadline for filing the motion for final approval is December 15, 2015; and
- 11 • The final approval hearing shall take place on January 8, 2016 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 1.
