Testimonial for Nutriveda Achieve and Autism Spectrum Disorder kids

My friend's son Noah aged ten is diagnosed with Asberger's, high-functioning Autism. With Asberger's and Autism, there are many quirky symptoms. For my son that included: instant gratification—could not save money and could not wait to eat til next meal for examples, poor social skills, Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), and intense moodiness.

Because of his moodiness, mostly depression, he was on a low-dose of Prozac. Because of his ADD, he was on Methilyn (a form of Ritalin). He was also 20lbs overweight.

I started giving Noah Nutriveda Achieve in September. It took some time to get just the right drink mix for him to "tolerate it" (that's another symptom—very very picky about smells, tastes and textures). Finally I discovered that shaking up sweetened chocolate almond milk with chocolate Achieve was the "right" combination for him. By the end of Septmeber, he drank it every morning regularly getting the nutrition in his body.

After just a few weeks, Noah was noticeably happier. His psychiatrist told him to continue drinking the shake very day and to stop the prozac. Then, a month later, he came down with a stomach flu and could not take the Methylin...that week I noticed that he was totally focused and easy to talk to without this stimulant. His teacher then reported that he was doing better than ever in school—with NO meds!

Meanwhile, Noah has lost 19lbs, with ease. He simply drinks "chocolate milk" for breakfast. He is so proud of himself...now svelte and off medications. He is now saving his allowance, petting animals and looking for friends, and HAPPY. Doctors and parents are asking me what I've done...I simply tell them that I'm feeding his brain with great nutrition!
