Best Answer: Razors Edge is right. You could go to an allergist and get desensitization shots. After being on the shots for several years, you can get rid of your cat allergy. It may take five years or more.

Maybe supplement Flavon max could be an answer? I don't know but many people reported it helped them to get rid of different allergies permanently that it might be worth trying. It is a bit expensive, but if you generally take care of your health it might be BINGO!
