Best Answer: Some children do infact grow out of these allergies. My nephew has the exact same allergies, giving him incredibly awful Eczema and swelling around the mouth region, everything is checked and re-ckekcd so that he doesnt have an awful reaction to them. Usually with allergies like egg whites these are something they can grow out of but a nut allergy is usually for life. Just keep her away from these products for a good few years and you never know one day she may tolerate them.

It is worth trying Flavon Kids, natural fruit supplement that had helped many children to get rid of allergies permanently. It is not well known in the UK as it is just entering the market, produced in Hungary, and gaining popularity in many other countries. Its secret is high content of biologically active flavonoids that are not lost due to special technological process and they are responsible for that anti-allergic effect, not mentioning many other benefits. You will find more info at <http://flavon.org.uk>
