Excerpt from Prevention Magazine Oct 88 p 96
Preliminary findings...Harvard researchers report intriguing discovery in the ongoing search for substances that can help cancer. When a blue green algae extract was fed to 20 hamsters pretreated to develop mouth cancer, none of the animals developed the disease. By comparison, 20 pretreated animals that did not receive the algae extract all developed mouth cancer!
Tissue samples taken from the algae-fed animals contained an immunity - stimulating substance, which researchers believe destroyed the cancer cells before they could multiply and form a tumour. (Nutrition and Cancer)
