1 Plaintiff Kathie Sonner (“Plaintiff”) and Defendant Premier Nutrition Corporation
 2 (“Defendant”), through their respective counsel of record (collectively, “the Parties”), submit 3 this Joint Status Report in advance of the Case Management Conference set for September 1, 4 2016, at 10:00 am.

5 I. Background

6 On April 15, 2016, the Court denied Defendant’s motion for summary judgment, 7 granted in part Plaintiff’s motion for class certification, and requested additional briefing on 8 the geographic scope of the Class. See ECF Nos. 133-134. The parties submitted additional 9 briefing, and on June 20, 2016, the Court issued an order limiting the Class to California
 10 consumers who purchased Joint Juice from Mach 1, 2009 to the present. See ECF No. 137.

11 II. Renewed Settlement Discussions/Class Notice

12 In light of the Court’s rulings on summary judgment and class certification, the parties 13 have resumed settlement discussions. If the parties are able to reach a class settlement, they 14 will submit that settlement, including a proposed notice plan, for the Court’s preliminary 15 approval. If they are not able to reach a settlement, Plaintiff will submit a motion, unopposed
 16 or otherwise, for an order approving the notice plan and forms. The plan will include a 17 standard 60-day period during which Class members may opt out of the Class. Accordingly, 18 taking into account the time needed for the independent notice administrator to finalize the 19 notice forms, case website, telephone hotline, publish the notice, and receive opt-outs, the 20 notice process can be completed within approximately 90 days of an order approving notice.

21 III. Discovery

22 Plaintiff’s Position: Defendant should supplement its previous discovery responses, 23 including its document production. Rule 26(e)(1) states parties “must” supplement discovery
 24 responses:

25 (1) A party who has made a disclosure under Rule 26(a) – or who has 26 responded to an interrogatory, request for production, or request for admission – must supplement or correct its disclosure or response:

27 (A) in a timely manner if the party learns that in some material respect the 28 disclosure or response is incomplete or incorrect, and if the additional or

1                   corrective information has not otherwise been made known to the other 2                   parties during the discovery process or in writing; or

3                   (B) as ordered by the court.

4                   Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(e)(1)(A)-(B).

5                   Here, supplemental discovery is necessary for two primary reasons. First, Defendant
6                   continues to sell Joint Juice with the advertisements at issue, so discovery responses should be 7                   updated. Second, pursuant to an agreed protocol for the production and review of Defendant's
8                   ESI (e.g., what employee custodians to search for ESI and what keywords to use for filtering
9                   down their ESI), Defendant produced its responsive ESI through March 2014. Given 10                  Defendant's continued sale of Joint Juice and the temporal scope of the certified Class,
11                  Defendant's ESI production is an "incomplete" response to Plaintiff's requests for production 12                  and "additional" information must be provided.

13                  For example, using the ESI keywords, Defendant previously produced communications
14                  regarding scientific studies concerning glucosamine through March 2014 (the date through 15                  which Defendant's counsel collected potentially responsive ESI). A supplemental production
16                  should be made using the same ESI keywords for the period March 2014 through the present
17                  to capture subsequent, responsive communications. If Defendant believes it is overly 18                  burdensome to supplement its production, it may save on pre-production review costs by 19                  producing the ESI pursuant to a Rule 502 "quick peek" or "clawback" agreement. See Fed. R.
20                  Evid. 502 (Advisory Comm. Explanatory Note, Rev. 11/28/2007) (Rule 502 "contemplates
21                  enforcement of claw back and quick peek arrangements as a way to avoid the excessive costs
22                  of pre-production review for privilege and work product") (citing Zubulake v. UBS Warburg
23                  LLC, 216 F.R.D. 280, 290 (S.D.N.Y. 2003). Defendant can further minimize costs by 24                  providing ESI in its native format.

25                  There are also supplemental, responsive documents that should be provided without 26                  using ESI keywords. These are likely a literal handful of documents. For example, Defendant
27                  should product Joint Juice marketing exemplars (labels, TV ads, radio ads etc.) and market
28

1 research reports (e.g., focus group study reports) that were not previously collected or 2 produced.

3 Defendant has agreed to provide supplemental responses to the interrogatories which 4 seek discrete sales and expense data relating to Joint Juice.

5 Based on this supplemental discovery, Plaintiff will likely need no more than three or 6 four depositions focused on this supplemental information, including to authenticate such 7 information and fully prepare for the merits' experts stage of the litigation.

8 Defendant's Position: Defendant will provide updated California sales figures for 9 Joint Juice.

10 Beyond that, Defendant is under no obligation to provide supplemental discovery of 11 any kind, because none of Defendant's discovery responses are incomplete or incorrect in any 12 material respect. Rule 26 requires supplementation only "if the party learns that in some 13 material respect the disclosure or response is incomplete or incorrect." Id. at (e)(1)(A)-(B)
14 (emphasis added); see also In re High Fructose Corn Syrup Antitrust Litig., No. 95-1477, 2000
15 WL 33180835, at *3 (C.D. Ill. July 19, 2000) (holding that parties are "under no obligation . . .
16 to provide information not yet in existence as of the date they answered the discovery request" 17 except upon "discovering that a response to the . . . discovery request was materially 18 incomplete or incorrect").

19 Plaintiff ignores the plain language and obvious import of Rule 26, however, arguing 20 that because Defendant produced advertisements, communications regarding scientific studies, 21 and market research reports during fact discovery, it must do so again now, or else its 22 production is "incomplete." But "Rule 26(e) does not place a continuing burden on a party 23 responding to a discovery request to supplement with new information," unless that new 24 information renders prior productions or responses materially incomplete or incorrect. Rhein
25 v. Smyth Auto., Inc., No. 1:10-CV-710, 2012 WL 3150953, at *3 (S.D. Ohio Aug. 2, 2012)
26 (citation omitted); see also Thompson v. Ret. Plan for Employees of S.C. Johnson & Sons,
27 Inc., No. 07-CV-1047, 2010 WL 2735694, at *1 (E.D. Wis. July 12, 2010) ("Rule 26(e) does 28 not require continual review of all information in a party's possession and constant

1 supplementation of discovery up until the moment the court enters a final judgment in the 2 action.”).

3 Since Defendant last responded to Plaintiff’s discovery requests, there have been no
4 material changes in Defendant’s advertising for Joint Juice, nor has Defendant conducted any 5 consumer research relating to Joint Juice. And to the extent there are new scientific or 6 technical studies relevant to the issues to be tried, the parties’ experts can address them without 7 the need for supplemental fact discovery.

8 Simply put, there is no need for any supplemental ESI searches, or for any depositions
9 (much less the “three or four” that Plaintiff proposes). As the submissions on summary 10 judgment and class certification show, the material facts and evidence in this case have been 11 thoroughly aired, and the parties have all the fact discovery they need to take this case to 12 trial. And contrary to Plaintiff’s suggestion, neither Rule 26 nor any other Federal Rule of 13 Civil Procedure impose a free-floating duty to provide “updated” disclosures or discovery
14 responses after the close of fact discovery. See Dong Ah Tire & Rubber Co. v. Glasforms, 15 Inc., No. C06-3359 JF (RS), 2008 WL 4786671, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 29, 2008) (“despite 16 [movant’s] reference to Rule 26(e)(1), nothing in that rule imposes a never ending obligation
17 to produce documents continuously as they are created”); MSC Software Corp. v. Altair Eng’g, 18 Inc., No. 07-12807, 2012 WL 1340445, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Apr. 18, 2012) (finding 19 supplementation was unwarranted because the party’s “prior responses to discovery requests 20 were not incorrect or incomplete” and noting that re-opening discovery after the summary 21 judgment phase “would significantly and needlessly delay the trial date”).

22 Plaintiff’s proposed “supplemental discovery” is nothing more than a transparent
23 attempt to reopen fact discovery under the guise of supplementation, and the Court should not 24 permit it.

25 IV. Joint Proposed Schedule

26 As explained above, the parties have resumed settlement discussions. Building 27 additional time into the schedule will facilitate such discussions and provide greater 28 opportunity for the parties to resolve this case before trial.
