My blessings kinda became a burden. I wanted to stay home more than roam the world. I stopped packing early, and started packing moments before flights. I stopped showing up to airport with time because I'm got so confident I could get it done 45 minutes before the flight takes off. I hadn't been some where that I fell in love for the first time again until this trip here in Japan 🇯🇵

Japan

The fashion, the people, the culture, the vibes, the food, the experiences, the laughter. To visit has been a dream come true but to now have friends, build a business here, and impact this country means even more. Japan, thank you from the bottom of my heart for making me fall in love with wandering again, and more than anything; for treating us like family
