Ten years ago as a fresh college student Corporate America was a dream. I wanted to rush through it fast to get my degree, to get a glorified job, bust my butt for 40 years and maybe just MAYBE.. make it to the top... Lol, that was a dream until I realized my WORTH

Corporate America doesn't care about your health, your sick child, your family emergency or your crippling commute, they don't care about what you do, you still barely get a 3% raise annually to keep up with inflation if you're LUCKY

Corporate America teaches you to sell your soul and become loyal for a paycheck, even though they would replace you within 30 days however the saddest part about it all is that most people don't have any faith in themselves and they STAY. They feel they "got the job" and life is gravy. They stay for the paycheck every two weeks. They stay for the security and the benefits. They stay for the title. They stay for the hope that they'll be at the top in MAYBE 40 years. Fear holds most people back, yet fear is an illusion. It isn't real. It only exists in your head. It starts and ends there. How long are you going to live with fear and self doubt? The time is going to pass no matter what you do or don't do. DO SOMETHING

I found my home without a company, community and opportunity and you are welcome here! Name a company that is giving away $3,900 in bonuses for newbies this month on top of commissions? I'll wait. Our company is the best, I will scream it from the rooftops because I love it so much!!! But I won't hunt you down or beg you to make your life better. When you decide, you know where to find me ⚡
