em.hening This month my tribe & I will surpass •10 MILLION• dollars in team sales.

Travis Hening & I will accomplish something that I N E V E R thought was imaginable.

We will officially have over 37,000 customers in our Downline.

There's so many huge milestones I could list off 🌟

But when a girl just come into my inbox asking me why I left my previous company and came here two years ago, it wasn't those big things I listed off.. I didn't have any idea our lives would look like they do now. I wasn't searching for anything fancy or big. I simply wanted to be aligned with the company I was behind

I wanted to stop spending more than I

I wanted to stop spending more than I was making
I wanted to stop cold messaging
I wanted to stop getting nervous every time a customer messaged me wanting to get out of their autoship commitment
I wanted to stop exhausting myself on my phone all day
I wanted to stop seeing my paycheck drop every month when I was still being named as a top enroller
I wanted to trust that I could bring people into an opportunity and really help them make money
I wanted to just make enough to be able to contribute to our bills
I wanted to find my fire again, because I believed in this industry SO much; I just knew I wasn't in the right place. I was sliding backwards down a slope just knew I wasn't in the right place. I was sliding backwards down a slope. Every sale or announcement or event I promised myself this "was what I'd been waiting for" and this was the one thing that was going to turn everything around. But things weren't going to turn around, not because I wasn't capable. Not because I wasn't meant to flourish in this industry. Simply because that's not where I was supposed to be. It wasn't where I could serve others How could I find success somewhere when I felt the way I did? No matter how much I pushed I knew the feelings that were in my heart, I knew how bad I was struggling to believe everything I was preaching.

So when she asked me that question, I finished my response by saying "It wasn't a bad company. it wasn't a bad that were in my heart, I knew how bad I was struggling to believe everything I was preaching. So when she asked me that question, I finished my response by saying "It wasn't a bad company, it wasn't a bad industry, I just wasn't my next chapter. And the moment I accepted that and gained confidence in that, our entire lives changed" • L I S T E N • to your heart sis, you'll know when you're home ☐
