em.hening This is for anyone who is in network marketing or ever has been 🙌 let's talk a little bit about this "freedom" we all talk about when it comes to working on our phones. Yes I own my time, Yes I have worked as my own boss for over 4 years now, never having to go clock in anywhere or report to anyone, and get to to build my paycheck on my phone 📱 which is amazing...but the catch? In my last gig I felt like I was a slave to my phone. I felt like I HAD to be on it at all times. Posting. Messaging. Adding. Charting. Counting volume. Because I knew if I stepped away even for a day everything would crumble. My head was constantly buried in my phone, no matter where I was. Whats the point of all this freedom if I'm the point of all this freedom if I'm actually not living and enjoying this life that I've worked so hard for? I need a real life, Not a relationship with my Facebook.

Do you still see me post? Absolutely! I still get to work my business from social media. The catch now though? I can put my phone down and unplug whenever I want without feeling guilty or stressing🙏 my paycheck still grows, my team still kicks butt, my inbox is still full. I've just found a way to rock this that worlds better for me and my girls. You shouldn't have to post a handful of times every day, message 100 people and feel like you're spamming your friends and family to run a successful business and build a paycheck online. When I realized that had become my my team still kicks butt, my inbox is still full. I've just found a way to rock this that worlds better for me and my girls. You shouldn't have to post a handful of times every day, message 100 people and feel like you're spamming your friends and family to run a successful business and build a paycheck online. When I realized that had become my reality, I knew it was time for a change. You give me the chance to give people the freedom to not be glued to their phones, not spam people, an empowering community, a bomb compensation plan, products people feel day one, $800+ available to make in your first two weeks, a car bonus, no charting and weekly pay.. GIRLLLLL enough said 🤪 #signmeUP
