alexmortonmindset  This is my first time "touching a stage" in 2011.. getting recognized for achieving roughly $3500/month in this industry. I remember watching all the 6/7 figure earners walking across stage, getting tears in my eye, because I knew I had found my thing. I knew I found the profession / industry I was going to virtually my life to over the next 10+ years. I can still feel those same emotions, sitting there all weekend, never hanging out in the hallways or even using the bathroom, just sitting there on the front of my chair, anxious to get back home and get to work. Nothing was the same after that weekend in Vegas. With some bonuses, that month I earned like $4200 and invested over $10,000.

bonuses, that month I earned like $4200 and invested over $10,000 into getting my team there. They told me to pack the event so I packed it. They told me to do presentations 5-6 nights per week so I did 3-5 presentations per day. They said to do personal development 10 minutes a day so I did it a hour a day minimum. I had a vision of making this industry "cool" for the younger generation. Was all "older people" talking about vitamin formulas and then 1 year later we had 15,000+ mostly young people slammed into the Mirage Hotel Convention Center. We went college to college, city to city, state to state, eventually country to country. Talking about a new way of earning money, getting freedom, thinking differently. We freedom, thinking differently. We were met with hate, significant oppression, but it didn't matter. Deep down I knew what we were doing was bigger than just the company, we were helping free young minds from the old ways of thinking, living, & future bondage. 10+ years later those kids are changing the world in dozens of ways. Makes me proud... and can't wait to continue this journey of helping people break free mentally, spiritually, financially, & emotionally.
