EGYPT IT WAS REAL

I'm not gonna lie, coming out here with all that's going on in G@z@ had me SHOOK to say the least. Especially being that this place is literally only 300 miles away. I will say this; not everything that is portrayed in the m3di@ (especially in the west) is what it seems and shouldn't be taken for face value, that goes for EVERYTHING. Question it all, I encourage you to do so

So many people contacted me and said i was insane for coming out here, that it's dangerous, that it's too close for comfort, etc etc

Well, For starters, I met some of the kindest people here with hearts of gold

Well, For starters, I met some of the kindest people here with hearts of gold. I found myself in places that I read about for years, and in places that were biblical. I had some of the most incredible food. The energy, although poverty stricken from inflation, (which is crazy because this economy used to be stronger than the US at one point) is unreal. People find peace and joy in the smallest of things. I learned about egypt's early forms of advanced alchemy, architecture, medicine, science, and math. I learned about how religion came to be in this country and how many prophets I've read about have graced this land. You come to realize that Africa is one of the most special places in the world if I'm being honest. I encourage people to obviously be educated but also to do research or places in the world if I'm being honest. I encourage people to obviously be educated but also to do research or come experience things for yourself in order to form an opinion. My heart is so full, and my mind is absolutely blown by the wonders this country provides.

Can't wait to show and share this with my family.

To the squad, y'all are special beyond belief and I'm forever grateful for the opportunity to further connect, an epic event, and to break bread; I'll see you soon ❤️
