Guess what? I'm going back to work. 🤗 and I'm excited! Can we normalize wanting to do/be more than just one thing? Let me explain..

Arbonne is something I LOVE and will always be a part of my life. Not everyone is meant to do this full time, and that's okay.. Let me tell you, I THRIVED when I did this business alongside my full time job. I've always felt more productive the busier I am. I had felt the tug to go back, so when a position opened up, I was quick to apply and so thankful they welcomed me back with open arms.

Want to know what's the best part about network marketing, (specifically Arbonne of course 🤪) is that it gives me CHOICES. I am verryrry picky about what network marketing, (specifically Arbonne of course 🤪) is that it gives me CHOICES. I am verrrry picky about what kind of work I'm willing to pour my time into. But I knew deep down I'd never be able to just do 1 thing 🤔 I'm not afraid of some hard work, especially when it's rewarding.

Some things that are important to me in a job that align with the job I'm going back to is- WORKING FROM HOME. If I had to leave my house for work, I don't think I could unless I absolutely had to lol, flexible schedule- if something comes up and I need to come in a couple hours late one day, no big deal, (lots of PTO time 🤪) that's a plus, the BEST boss anyone could ask for, and I get to find homes for foster kids.

I had a feeling when I left that it wouldn't be forever. I had a few moments of "wow I'm so dumb to leave the best job in the world" bc truly, there's no other job out there I ever want to do, but Arbonne allowed me to take a year off from that job and enjoy some of the best times and I'm so beyond thankful for that. I have HUGE goals in my arbonne business this year that I'm so excited about, and also so ready to help get these foster kiddos placed again.

I'm lucky enough to have TWO jobs that I LOVE, and where I make an impact. I've always been a BIG believer in multiple streams of income, but I think it needs to be something you love and are passionate about.

So here's to the next chapter 🥂🥰 the
