

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

TODD C. BANK, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated,

Plaintiff,

-against-

PNY TECHNOLOGIES, INC.,

Defendant.

COMPLAINT

1:26-cv-4418

INTRODUCTION

1. Plaintiff brings this action individually and intends to maintain it on behalf of all other persons who, during the statute-of-limitations periods governing their respective claims, purchased, through Amazon (as defined below), a “PNY [X]GB Attaché X USB 3.2 Gen 1 Flash Drive, Advanced Performance Up to 130MB/s Read, Everyday Data Store & Transfer, Reliable Portable Storage, Durable, Type-A, Computers, Laptops, Desktops” (the “Flash Drive”) (Plaintiff and the other persons described in this paragraph are hereinafter referred to collectively as the “Class,” and each such person as a “Class Member”).

PARTIES

2. Plaintiff, Todd C. Bank (“Bank”), is a natural person and a resident of this District.

3. Defendant, PNY Technologies, Inc. (“PNY”), is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Delaware, and maintains its principal place of business in Parsippany, New Jersey.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4. This Court has subject-matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. Section 1332(d)(2) because there are more than one hundred Class Members and the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5,000,000, exclusive of interest and costs.

5. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. Section 1391(b)(2) because Bank purchased a Flash Drive in this District.

6. This Court has personal jurisdiction over PNY under N.Y. C.P.L.R. Section 302(a)(1) because PNY submitted, pursuant to a contract between PNY and Amazon.com Services, Inc., or a subsidiary thereof (“Amazon”), a listing for the Flash Drives, which, thereby, appeared in the various formats of Amazon’s website, i.e., amazon.com (the “Product Listing”), and placed the Flash Drives on sale throughout the United States, including New York, which resulted in Bank’s purchase, in New York, of a Flash Drive and therefore caused Bank’s harm to occur in New York.

7. This Court has personal jurisdiction over PNY under N.Y. C.P.L.R. Section 302(a)(3)(i) because: (i) PNY, while outside of New York, submitted the Product Listing to Amazon, which resulted in Bank’s purchase, in New York, of a Flash Drive and therefore caused Bank’s harm to occur in New York; and (ii) PNY derives substantial revenue from goods that are used in New York.

8. This Court has personal jurisdiction over PNY under N.Y. C.P.L.R. Section 302(a)(3)(ii) because: (i) PNY, while outside of New York, submitted the Product Listing to Amazon, which resulted in Bank’s purchase, in New York, of a Flash Drive and therefore caused Bank’s harm to occur in New York; (ii) PNY expected, or should reasonably have expected, the Product Listing to have consequences in New York; and (iii) PNY derives substantial revenue from interstate commerce.

FACTS

9. At all relevant times, PNY has sold the Flash Drives through Amazon.

10. On May 5, 2026, Bank accessed the Product Listing and thereupon purchased a Flash Drive.

11. The Product Listing contained, as its title, the name of the Flash Drives, one of which would initially appear in the Product Listing and each other of which would replace the initial name upon a person's clicking of a box that contained the following: "[X]GB," the "X" being 32, 64, 128, 256, or 512, and "GB" meaning a gigabyte of one billion bytes; and the price.

12. In the Product Listing, a number followed by "GB," i.e., "32 GB," "64 GB," "128 GB," "256 GB," or "512 GB," appeared next to the term "Memory Storage Capacity" (these items, collectively with the corresponding items described in the preceding paragraph, are hereinafter referred to as the "Capacity Representations" or the "Represented Capacities").

13. The term "GB," as used in the Product Listing, means a gigabyte, i.e., one billion bytes.

14. The Capacity Representations referred to the storage capacity of the Flash Drives.

15. Based upon the Capacity Representations, a significant portion of the purchasers of the Flash Drives reasonably believed that they would be able to store the applicable Represented Capacity of data on the Flash Drives (these purchasers are hereinafter referred to as the "Reasonable Belief Purchasers"); that is, these purchasers believed that the Flash Drives had a user storage capacity ("User Storage Capacity") of the applicable Represented Capacity.

16. The actual User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives are materially less than the Represented Capacities (the "Discrepancies").

17. The Discrepancies are caused by "over-provisioning," which is the sealing off, or reserving, of a portion of the Flash Drives' storage capacity for various functions of the Flash Drives.

18. PNY intended that the purchasers of the Flash Drives would believe that the User Storage Capacity was the applicable Represented Capacity.

19. PNY believed that a significant portion of the purchasers of the Flash Drives would be Reasonable Belief Purchasers.

20. PNY believed that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would rely upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity in deciding whether to purchase a Flash Drive.

21. PNY intended that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would rely upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity in deciding whether to purchase a Flash Drive.

22. PNY believed that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would, based upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity, be more likely to purchase a Flash Drive than they would have been if they had known of the actual User Storage Capacity.

23. PNY intended that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would, based upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity, be more likely to purchase a Flash Drive than they would have been if they had known of the actual User Storage Capacity.

24. The Product Listing contained the following: “For Flash Media Devices, 1 megabyte = 1 million bytes; 1 gigabyte = 1 billion bytes. Actual useable capacity may be less than total listed (some capacity is used for formatting and other functions, and thus is not available for data storage).” (the “Disclaimer”).

25. The Reasonable Belief Purchasers did not find that the Capacity Representations were ambiguous and therefore did not believe that they should search the Product Listing if they wished to know whether they would be able to store the applicable Represented Capacity of data on the Flash Drives.

26. The Disclaimer was insufficiently conspicuous in general, in view of its importance, and in view of the conspicuousness of the Capacity Representations.

27. The Reasonable Belief Purchasers were materially misled by the Capacity Representations.

28. If the Product Listing had adequately represented the User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives, the price of the Flash Drives would have been less than what it actually was, and, therefore, the Class Members would have paid that lower amount.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

29. Bank brings this action individually, and intends to maintain this action, pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b)(3), on behalf of all other persons who, during the statute-of-limitations period governing their respective claims asserted herein, purchased a Flash Drive through Amazon.

30. There are thousands of persons who are similarly situated to Bank and would therefore be Class Members.

31. Excluded from the Class are the directors, officers, and employees of PNY or of their subsidiaries and affiliates.

32. Bank's individual claims are, factually and legally, typical of the claims of the other Class Members.

33. Bank would fairly and adequately protect the interests of the other Class Members. Bank has no interests that are antagonistic to, or in conflict with, the other Class Members. Indeed, Bank's interests are, for purposes of this litigation, coincident with the interests of the other Class Members.

34. A class action is superior to all other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy. Because the Class is so numerous that joinder of all Class Members is impracticable, and because the damages suffered by most of the individual Class Members are too small to render prosecution of the claims asserted herein economically feasible on an individual basis, the expense and burden of individual litigation make it impractical for Class Members to adequately address the wrongs complained of herein. Bank knows of no impediments to the effective management of this action as a class action.

35. Common questions of law and fact predominate over questions that affect only individual Class Members. Among those questions are:

- (i) whether the Capacity Representations accurately represented the User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives;
- (ii) whether a significant portion of the Class reasonably believed that the User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives were the applicable Represented Capacities of the Flash Drives;
- (iii) whether the differences between the Represented Capacities and the actual User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives are material;
- (iv) whether PNY intended that the Class Members would believe that the Represented Capacities of the Flash Drives were the User Storage Capacities of the Flash Drives;
- (v) whether PNY believed that a significant portion of the purchasers of the Flash Drives would be Reasonable Belief Purchasers;
- (vi) whether PNY believed that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would rely upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity in deciding whether to purchase a Flash Drive;
- (vii) whether PNY intended that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would rely upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity in deciding whether to purchase a Flash Drive;
- (viii) whether PNY believed that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would, based upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity, be more likely to purchase a Flash Drive than they would have been if they had known of the actual User Storage Capacity;
- (ix) whether PNY intended that the Reasonable Belief Purchasers would, based upon their belief regarding the User Storage Capacity, be more likely to purchase a Flash Drive than they would have been if they had known of the actual User Storage Capacity; and
- (x) whether, if the Product Listing had adequately represented the User Storage Capacity, the price of the Flash Drives would have been less than what it actually was.

CAUSES OF ACTION

36. With respect to each of the causes of action asserted below, Bank repeats and re-alleges, and incorporates herein, each and every allegation contained in paragraphs “1” through “35” inclusive of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.
